Los Angeles, CA — Rebelfy is redefining the intersection of launch of its first immersive collection.

Founded by artist David Cook, Rebelfy transforms hand-painted masterpieces into high-impact collections that challenge convention, inspire individuality, and blur the lines between fine art, streetwear, and lifestyle.

With an unapologetic approach to creativity, Rebelfy stands at the forefront of artistic rebellion, blending cyberpunk aesthetics, underground grit, and counterculture influences. The brand's debut collections feature bold prints, exclusive apparel, high-end accessories, and statement pieces designed for fearless self-expression.

A New Era of Art Beyond the Canvas

Rebelfy was built on the belief that art should be experienced, not just observed. Each collection starts as a hand-painted piece, crafted with raw emotion and transformed into limited-edition prints, apparel, home goods, and digital experiences.

Highlights from the launch include:

Anime Series — A high-energy blend of cyberpunk and manga influences

Cybernaut Series — A fusion of futuristic anime elements and high-tech mysticism

Urban Series — A tribute to underground street culture, influenced by graffiti

RebelVibe Apparel — A statement-making streetwear line infused with cyberpunk energy

The Wasteland Collection — A post-apocalyptic, battle-worn aesthetic inspired by resilience and reinvention

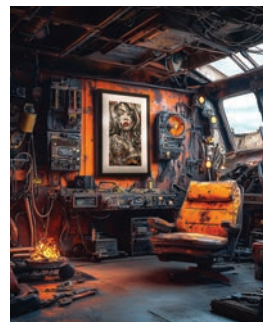

"Rebelfy is more than a brand—it's a creative rebellion," says founder David Cook. "I wanted to build something that allows people to wear, live, and embody the raw energy of my paintings. This is for those who refuse to conform."

Beyond Fashion: A Lifestyle of Defiance and Self-Expression

Rebelfy isn't just launching a brand—it's creating a movement. Limited-edition drops, collaborations, and collector's zines will provide exclusive insight into the creative process, making every piece a part of a larger artistic narrative.
